Forecast For Northeast England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Sunday 19 Dec 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Remaining chilly and mostly cloudy overnight.

This Evening and Tonight:
Cloudy this evening with hill fog and outbreaks of light rain and drizzle. Turning drier with a few isolated clear spells potentially spreading inland after midnight. Less cold than previous nights, but staying chilly. Minimum temperature 1 deg C (34 deg F).

Monday:
Another cloudy start for most, with hill fog. Cloud breaks are expected to develop, with some sunny spells possible. Staying rather chilly, especially inland and despite any sunny spells. Maximum temperature 6 deg C (43 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Cold, dry and rather cloudy Tuesday and Wednesday with overnight frosts. Some sunny or brighter spells possible. Staying cold Thursday. A chance of rain, perhaps turning wintry, mainly over hills.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.